Of the stern agony, and shroud, and pall,
And breathless darkness, and the narrow house,
Make thee to shudder, and grow sick at heart;—
Go forth, under the open sky, and list
To Nature's teachings, while from all around—
Earth and her waters, and the depths of air—
Comes a still voice—Yet a few days, and thee
The all-beholding sun shall see no more
The narrow house.
Go forth, under the open sky, and list to Nature's teachings.
THANATOPSIS.

In all his course; nor yet in the cold ground,

"WHERE THY PALE FORM WAS LAID, WITH MANY TEARS."

Where thy pale form was laid, with many tears,
And, lost each human trace, surrendering up
Thine individual being, shalt thou go
To mix forever with the elements,
To be a brother to the insensible rock
And to the sluggish clod, which the rude swain
Turns with his share, and treads upon. The oak
Shall send his roots abroad, and pierce thy mould.

Yet not to thine eternal resting-place
Shalt thou retire alone, nor couldst thou wish
To thine eternal resting-place.
Couch more magnificent. Thou shalt lie down

"THE OAK SHALL SEND HIS ROOTS ABROAD, AND PIERCE THY MOULD."

With patriarchs of the infant world—with kings,
The vales stretching in pensive quietness between.
THANATOPSIS.

The powerful of the earth—the wise, the good,
Fair forms, and hoary seers of ages past,
All in one mighty sepulchre.
The hills
Rock-ribbed and ancient as the sun,—the vales
Stretching in pensive quietness between;
The venerable woods—rivers that move
In majesty, and the complaining brooks
That make the meadows green;
and, poured round all,
Rivers that move in majesty.
The complaining brooks that make the meadows green.
THANATOPSIS.

Old Ocean's gray and melancholy waste.—
Are but the solemn decorations all
Of the great tomb of man. The golden sun,
The planets, all the infinite host of heaven,
Are shining on the sad abodes of death,
Through the still lapse of ages.
All that tread
The globe are but a handful to the tribes
That slumber in its bosom.—Take the wings
Old Ocean's gray and melancholy waste.
Like one who wraps
the drapery of his couch about him.
THANATOPSIS.

Of morning, and the Barcan desert pierce,
Or lose thyself in the continuous woods
Where rolls the Oregon, and hears no sound,
Save his own dashings—yet the dead are there:
And millions in those solitudes,
since first
The flight of years began, have laid them down
In their last sleep—the dead reign there alone.
So shalt thou rest, and what if thou withdraw
THANATOPSIS.

Unheeded by the living, and no friend
Take note of thy departure? All that breathe
Will share thy destiny. The gay will laugh
When thou art gone, the solemn brood of care
Plod on, and each one as before will chase
His favorite phantom; yet all these shall leave
Their mirth and their employments, and shall come
And make their bed with thee.
As the long train
Yet all these shall leave their mirth and their employments.
Thanatopsis.

Of ages glide away, the sons of men,
The youth in life’s green spring, and he who goes
In the full strength of years, matron and maid,
And the sweet babe, and the gray-headed man—
Shall one by one be gathered to thy side,
The youth in life's green spring.
The sweet babe, and the gray-headed man.
THANATOPSIS.

By those, who in their turn shall follow them.

So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, that moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
THANATOPSIS.

Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch

"SUSTAINED AND SOOTHE By AN UNFALTERING TRUST."

About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

COLLECTION OF MASTERPIECES.

This Collection of certain of the most successful and best-loved works by various authors has been entered upon by its publishers with the intention of making it as exquisite and perfect in form as possible. Each volume contains a large number of original illustrations by well-known artists, made especially for the Collection, and printed with the utmost care.

The typographical details are somewhat in the best modern French style, and the paper is of the highest grade, and has been manufactured especially for this Collection, which is issued in a variety of beautiful bindings, to correspond with the dainty interiors of the books.

The following volumes are ready, each of which can be had in either of the bindings described:

Masterpieces of Prose and Verse.

specks playing at hide-and-seek in the sky all night, must surely be the children of the stars; and they would all be grieved to see their playmates, the children of men, no more.”

There was one clear, shining star that used to come out in the sky before the rest, near the church spire, above the graves.
sister drooped, and came to be so very weak that she could no longer stand in the window at night; and then the child looked sadly out by himself and when he saw the star, turned round and said to the patient pale face on the bed, "I see the star!" and then a smile would come upon the face, and a little weak voice used to say, "God bless my brother and the star!"

"This is the forest primeval"
"'PATIENCE! ' THE PRIEST WOULD SAY."
"HUNTING FOR FURS IN THE FORESTS."
Silenced, but not convinced, when the story was ended, the blacksmith stood like a man who fain would speak, but findeth no language;
and all his thoughts congealed into lines on his face, as the vapors freeze in fantastic shapes on the window-panes in the winter.

Then Evangeline lighted the brazen lamp on the table,

"WROTE WITH A STEADY HAND."
"HOLDING ALOFT IN HIS HANDS, WITH ITS SEALS, THE ROYAL COMMISSION."
Over the watery floor, and beneath the reverberant branches;
But not a voice replied; no answer came from the darkness;
And, when the echoes had ceased, like a sense of pain was the silence.
Then Evangeline slept; but the boatmen rowed through the midnight,
Silent at times, then singing familiar Canadian boat-songs,

"WATER-LILIES IN MYRIADS."

Such as they sang of old on their own Acadian rivers,
And through the night were heard the mysterious sounds of the desert,
Far off, indistinct, as of wave or wind in the forest,

'O eyes long laid in happy sleep!'
'O happy sleep, that lightly fled!'

"AND O'ER THEM MANY A FLOWING RANGE OF VAPOR BUOY'D THE CRESCENT-BARK."

'O happy kiss, that woke thy sleep!'
'O love, thy kiss would wake the dead!'

IV.

A song of a nest:—
There was once a nest in a hollow:

"I PRAY YOU HEAR MY SONG OF A NEST, FOR IT IS NOT LONG."

Down in the mosses and knot-grass pressed,
Soft and warm, and full to the brim—
"O VELVET BEE, YOU'RE A DUSTY FELLOW."

O velvet bee, you're a dusty fellow,
You've powdered your legs with gold!
O brave marsh marybuds, rich and yellow,
Give me your money to hold!

O columbine, open your folded wrapper,
Where two twin turtle-doves dwell!

"HER FACE IS SAINT-LIKE."

That bright young creature kneeling there
With every feeling, every thought
Absorbed in high and holy dreams
Of—new Spring dresses, truth to say
To them the time is sanctified
From Shrove-tide until Easter day.
"'I, HELENA, TAKE THEE—LOVE—CHERISH—AND '—WELL, I CAN'T HELP IT,—'OBEY.'"
"Her father's voice came through the wood, he'd made a fortune tanning leather."

Above, the heavens aglow with light,
Beneath our feet the sleeping ocean,
E'en as the sky my hope was bright,
Deep as the sea was my devotion.

Her father's voice came through the wood,
He'd made a fortune tanning leather;
I was his clerk; I thought it good
To keep on talking about the weather.
